

Queerly Represent Me has a team of consultants who are qualified to discuss diversity, inclusion, and accessibility with you.

Contact

hello@queerlyrepresent.me
<http://QueerlyRepresent.Me>
@QueerlyRepMe

Services

Sensitivity reading of game content and documentation. Creating content for public statements and press releases.

Supporting internal diversity and inclusion training.

Assisting with establishing diversity and inclusion groups and policies within workplaces. Supporting the transition towards more inclusive practices.

Consulting on inclusion and accessibility practices within workplaces and in event planning.

Providing reports, question and answer sessions, video conference calls, and whatever else your team requires to reach your desired result.

Consultants

We have several consultants on our core team, and many other consultants on call based on your requirements.

Queerly Represent Me helps our consultants by taking the invoicing, contracting, and reporting off their hands, leaving them to do what they do best: consultation.

Our consultants have tertiary qualifications and life experience in a range of areas, including but not limited to disability services, psychology, game design, and narrative design.

We have a range of expertise areas, including but not limited to assorted sexualities (including asexuality), assorted genders and gender identities, race and culture (including Indigenous Australian), disability and accessibility, and mental health.

Testimonials

Chris Gardiner, Narrative Director, Failbetter Games

'I'd strongly encourage other studios to engage QRM for consultations. Our experience was professional, warm, intensely useful, and intellectually invigorating. QRM went to great lengths to understand the specific context of our game and audience, and tailor their advice accordingly.'

Additional references available on request.

Starting prices

You will be charged a set rate that is calculated from our initial discussions based on an hourly rate per consultant.

This rate can vary depending on the time and number of consultants required for your particular situation. Please contact us for a quote!

Sensitivity reading starting at 180AUD / 150USD
Full consultation starting at 700AUD / 580USD

Queerly Represent Me Ltd.
ABN: 95 626 874 226
ACN: 626 874 226

Queerly Represent Me acknowledges the Gubbi Gubbi people, the Traditional Owners of the land on which the company was founded, as well as the Indigenous people of every region—both Australian and internationally—in which we work. We pay our respects to Elders past, present, and emerging.